

THE EDS-CISCO ALLIANCE DELIVERS BUSINESS-FOCUSED NETWORK SOLUTIONS

The EDS, an HP company, and Cisco alliance delivers data center virtualization, intelligent networks, standardized networks and other differentiated technology solutions to substantially reduce our clients' capital and operating expenses.

Overview

Cisco brings worldwide leadership in IP-enabled networking to the EDS Agility Alliance. Together, we comprise the future of global networking capabilities, delivering truly comprehensive services with the highest quality performance. By managing multiple traffic types over a single network, EDS and Cisco enable clients to reduce network costs and develop next generation services while increasing productivity and enhancing agility.

What the EDS-Cisco Alliance means to you

EDS aligned with Cisco to build and deliver a common service management environment for multicarrier wired and wireless communications environments. Clients benefit from greater visibility, performance transparency and consolidated reporting.

Advanced technologies from Cisco, such as MPLS, intelligent self-healing and secure networks, and IP-based communications are in demand from clients, and in turn have created additional opportunity for EDS to show innovation and thought leadership with our clients.

Developed and built with Cisco, EDS' Global Services Network makes secure utility computing a reality for our clients. We are able to provide seamless and consistent service delivery from EDS development centers globally, which supports our EDS Best Shore® strategies, equating to increased productivity and cost savings to the client.

"The alliance between Cisco and EDS provides customers with a competitive and strategic advantage through our jointly developed global network solutions. EDS is a trusted adviser, and together we manage today's most advanced global networks while delivering cost savings and advanced capabilities for greater competitive advantage."
